5. Waters of the US – We are completing our work with the Army Corps on the proposed rulemaking, which should be ready to go into interagency review in February. We are also preparing for a major public education campaign on the multiple functions of small streams and wetlands of importance to the American public, which will coincide with the release of ORD's science report on connectivity of waters, which EPA is getting ready to send to the SAB for review. The guidance is still pending at OMB.
